British Flow Battery

Overview

Who will develop a flow battery?

Invinity said Frontier will act as the lead developer, securing project financing, land, connections and planning permissions. Invinity will be the exclusive supplier of the flow battery technology. The final volumes will be dependent on what capacity is enabled by the UK energy regulator OFGEM's 2025 window and how many projects are accepted.

What is a flow battery?

Flow batteries are an alternative battery type in the industry (Figure 21). Flow batteries consist of two large separate tanks containing a liquid electrolyte. The battery operates by pumping the two separate electrolytes through a cell to allow ion transfer between the two liquids. A membrane prevents the two liquids from mixing.
