How much does a solar panel lease cost?

Solar panel leases cost between $50 and $250 per month, on average. The exact amount the homeowner pays depends on the amount of energy they use at home, the company supplying the lease, their location, and their credit score. The customer can choose between a number of financing options that best suit their needs.

Should you buy or lease solar panels?

Leasing solar panels is an excellent option if you want to avoid upfront costs, benefit from lower energy bills immediately, and have maintenance handled by the provider. However, over time, you may end up paying more than if you had bought the system outright.

Why should you lease solar panels?

Leasing solar panels allows you to enjoy the benefits of renewable energy without the financial burden of ownership. This means you can benefit from solar power while avoiding other ongoing costs, such as maintenance, over time, which is beneficial. What is solar leasing?

Are solar leases a good idea?

Solar leases are a great way for everyone to benefit from solar energy – especially those who can't afford the upfront costs. Most lease suppliers provide the option of a no-cost upfront payment, whilst others offer the option to pay for just part of the system.
