London distributed energy storage project

Overview

What is long-duration electricity storage (LDEs)?

Long-Duration Electricity Storage (LDES) refers to energy storage systems that can store and release electricity for long periods, typically eight hours or more. These systems help balance the supply and demand of electricity, especially when using renewable energy sources like wind and solar, which can be unpredictable.

Is the UK ready for a new pumped storage hydropower facility?

“This is a historic moment for the UK’s energy system. We’ve not built a new Pumped Storage Hydropower (PSH) facility in nearly 50 years, but with over 10GW and 200GWh of shovel-ready projects, the Hydropower sector stands ready to deliver.

Could 20GW of LDEs save the energy system £24 billion?

Government analysis has found that 20GW of LDES, the current target set for 2050, could save the electricity system £24 billion between 2030 and 2050, cutting household energy bills as additional cheap renewable energy reduces reliance on more expensive natural gas.

What is Advanced Distributed storage for grid benefit (adsorb)?

The Advanced Distributed Storage for Grid Benefit (ADSorB) Project aims to disrupt the way we heat our homes by deploying and demonstrating a series of innovative, smart, and interoperable thermal energy stores.
