Low-pressure solar-powered containerized aquaculture industry in Senegal

Overview

Does Senegal have a solar energy sector?

Senegal's energy sector is increasingly reliant on solar power, making it essential to assess its long-term viability under changing climate conditions. This study evaluates future solar energy production in Senegal up to 2050, focusing on eight operational solar plants: Bokhol, Sakal, Malicounda, Kahone, Ten Merina, Mekhe, Ndiass, and Kael.

What is solar-powered aquaculture?

Solar-powered aquaculture reduces operational costs, enhances the sustainability of farming practices, and reduces greenhouse gas emissions. The integration of solar energy into aquaculture technology represents a promising and transformative step towards a more sustainable and efficient approach to fish and seafood production.

How does solar production affect climatic conditions in Senegal?

The seasonal cycle of solar production over Senegal (Ten Merina) is largely influenced by solar radiation, with peak production occurring in March-April and the lowest production during the rainy season (July-September). This demonstrates the dependence of solar production on climatic conditions.

Can solar energy be used in aquaculture?

Solar energy, derived from the sun's radiation, provides an eco-friendly and renewable source of power that has gained significant attention in the context of aquaculture. The use of photovoltaic (PV) solar panels to capture sunlight and convert it into electricity is a key component of solar energy systems in aquaculture.
