

Solar glass is shatter-resistant

Overview

What is the difference between regular glass and shatterproof glass?

Usage: Regular glass is often used in low-risk areas like picture frames or decorative pieces. Shatterproof glass is preferred in high-risk areas like windows, windshields, and doors where safety is critical. Shatterproof glass is a versatile product with many uses. Some common applications include:.

What is shatterproof glass?

In shatterproof glass, such as laminated glass, tempered glass, and polycarbonate layers, an interlayer of film bonds the glass to keep it largely intact, thus preventing dangerous splinters, which means there's less dangerous debris to be concerned about.

Does bullet-resistant glass shatter the movie myth?

It may shatter the myth, but it does not shatter the glass! While the movie myth is busted, real life is not altogether void of the things that have made appearances on the silver screen. Real-world materials like bullet-resistant glass actually do exist.

Why should you choose Schott Solar cell cover glass?

Design opportunities are further enhanced by the availability of different coatings. SCHOTT's Solar Cell Cover Glasses are available as two variants, SCHOTT® Solar Glass 0787 and SCHOTT® Solar Glass sphere, each one providing specific technical properties for challenging environments.
