Vietnam's requirements for new energy and energy storage

Overview

What is Vietnam's energy plan?

It emphasizes a competitive, transparent market prioritizing renewable, new, and clean energy while safeguarding energy security. By 2030, Vietnam aims to raise unprocessed primary energy supply to 150–170 million tons of oil equivalent, installed capacity to 183–236 GW, and generation to 560–624 billion kWh.

Vietnam is doubling down on its energy ambitions, with the Communist Party's Politburo issuing a new resolution that underscores energy as the foundation of economic growth.

Why should Vietnam invest in solar power?

Vietnam can leverage domestic solar manufacturing to meet domestic demand, implement direct power purchase agreements (DPPAs) enabling private renewable supplies, accelerate grid and battery storage infrastructure, and avoid costly LNG imports by prioritizing renewables.

Should Vietnam recalibrate its power system?

As Vietnam grapples with rising power purchase costs and mounting utility losses, policymakers are under pressure to recalibrate the system to ensure long-term financial sustainability.
